

Cooksey/Dent Cemetery
CH-658
Dentsville vic.
Private

1877-1921

The Cooksey/Dent Cemetery in the vicinity of Dentsville, although the victim of vandalism, is typical of the family burial plots of the late 19th and early 20th century scattered throughout Charles County. It features a wide variety of grave markers including marble tablets, tablets on a base, footstones, and simple fieldstone markers. Located on an easement property in a secluded, wooded area of the Fords Manor subdivision, the cemetery sits on high ground overlooking a tributary of Gilbert Swamp Run, known as Hells Bottom Run. The Dents and Cookseys were well-established families living in the Dentsville area since the middle of the 19th century.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Cooksey/Dent Cemetery is located in a secluded wooded area near the village of Dentsville. When the Ford's Manor Subdivision was established, an easment was placed around the cemetery. The site is on high ground overlooking a creek bed known as Hells Bottom Run. An estimated 25 graves are found at the site and range from large inscribed tablets, tablets on a base, and foot markers to uninscribed fieldstone headers. Several cedar trees are scattered throughout, many of which are diseased. The remains of a wire fence and iron gate are visible around the cemetery. The cemetery stands in an area with little vegetative undergrowth and appears to be minimally maintained. In addition, extensive damage has occurred from vandalism. Most stones have been turned over.

Prepare a one-paragraph summary statement of significance addressing applicable criteria, followed by a narrative discussion of the history of the resource and its context. (For compliance reports, complete evaluation on a DOE Form - see manual.)

The Cooksey/Dent Cemetery is representative of family burial plots in Charles County. Consisting of a site carefully situated on high ground, extensively planted with cedars, surrounded by a fence and scattered with carefully placed tombstones, the cemetery includes the most typical features associated with such sites within the region.

Little is known about the individuals buried here, or the farm once associated with the site. However, the Cooksey and Dent families had been active in the Dentsville area since the 19th century. The latter is a long established family in Charles County occupying a large portion of the surrounding land from at least as early as the beginning of the 19th century.
